2016 INSHORT STUDENT FILM SHOWCASE

Every year, DU's undergraduate and graduate Film Studies & Production students convene, working with faculty and each other to create original films on a topic of their choice. Students pitch the idea, write the script, find the actors, produce, direct, edit, and ultimately present their final products to the faculty and their peers. On Thursday, June 2, 2016, the fruits of their efforts will be screened at the annual InShort Film Showcase here on the University of Denver's campus.

22 students were involved in this year's two-quarter Narrative Film course, led by Associate Professor Rodney Buxton. A full list of the titles is provided below. Check back in July to watch the videos online! Videos from past years can be viewed here: Student Showcase: InShort.

Students, family, friends, faculty, staff, and alumni are all welcome to join us at the Showcase at the end of the quarter. Light refreshments will be provided. No registration is necessary.
