

Fridlyand Archive Online

Through DU's Penrose Library, and in association with the Colorado Alliance of Research Libraries, the University of Denver participates in the Alliance Digital Repository (ADR), a multi-library collaborative project aimed at the archival storage and retrieval of digital resources.

Hosted by Penrose Library, the entire Fridlyand Archive, in digital form, will soon be accessible on ADR. When the collection is fully cataloged, it will contain detailed descriptions and search terms for every image. Display tools will allow users to zoom in on details of each image, and to leave comments about them for others to see. Following the principle of open access, these digital resources are available for research, scholarly, and personal use by anyone in the world.

During the On the Road exhibition, a demonstration version of the ADR Fridlyand Archive will be installed in the gallery. While not all features of the display system are activated at this time, the kiosk will enable viewers to search the preliminary descriptions available and browse the collection at leisure.