About
CCESL's Community-Engaged Learning Initiative enhances academic learning through reciprocal relationships with communities that offer opportunities to advance critical thinking, develop civic skills, and address public problems.

Service Learning at DU
CCESL collects information regarding service learning courses taught each year across campus.

More than
1,101 DU students participated in
75 Community-engaged classes

Faculty Development
Training and funding opportunities are provided for those interested in learning how to teach or deepen rigorous community-engaged courses.

16 FACULTY
Participated in CCESL's 2-Day Service Learning Scholars Workshop

26 FACULTY
Participated in Trainings for Advanced Practitioners

Service Learning Associates (SLA)
Student SLAs work with faculty to support service learning in classes. Students assist faculty in the planning, implementation and assessment of the service learning components of courses.

5 Service Learning Associates dedicated
610 Hours in the community working with
19 Partners to support
187 DU students

9 New Mini-Grants
Plus
8 Continuing Grants
Supported faculty use of community-engaged learning in their classes

Dr. Timothy Sweeney and his students bring the science of vision and perception to under-served K-12 students.

Service Learning Scholars hear from Faculty and Community Partners.

GEOG 3410 students applied their knowledge to two community-based research projects.

www.du.edu/ccesl