CALENDAR

FALL TERM: SEPTEMBER—DECEMBER

SPRING TERM: JANUARY—JUNE

AN APRIL—JUNE TERM IS ALSO AVAILABLE FOR ADVANCED STUDENTS PREPARED TO TAKE REGULAR UNIVERSITY COURSES IN SPANISH OR ECONOMICS/BUSINESS COURSES IN ENGLISH. NO SPANISH LANGUAGE COURSES ARE AVAILABLE DURING THIS TERM.

PROGRAM

Pompeu Fabra University was established in 1990, and hosts approximately 10,200 students. This program is appropriate for self-reliant students who are seeking the opportunity to be independent. As students will work directly with the university rather than through a separate study abroad organization, this is not an appropriate program for those who require extensive support services or who are seeking organized excursions and activities. Strong Spanish language skills are crucial.

ACADEMICS

Students may choose courses from the Hispanic and European Studies program (which includes language study), from regular undergraduate offerings (typically in economics), and from the ESCI School of International Business. Courses at Pompeu Fabra are taught in Catalan, Spanish, or English. Enrollment in courses taught in Spanish will be dependent upon language ability. Apart from the Hispanic and European Studies program, courses in English tend to be concentrated in the Business Administration/Economics faculty and the ESCI School of International Business.

COST

Billed by DU:

- DU Tuition
- DU Technology Fee

Non-Cherrington Global Scholars will be charged a $50 application fee.

LOCATION: BARCELONA, SPAIN

Barcelona (1.6 million) is located in northeastern Spain on the Mediterranean coast, and is the capital of Catalonia. The city is the second largest in Spain, and is well known for its art, architecture, and cultural heritage. The official languages of Barcelona include both Catalan and Spanish. Barcelona is a cosmopolitan business and cultural center, and is home to excellent art museums, restaurants, and beaches.

HOUSING & MEALS

Accommodations are not provided by the program; you are responsible for setting up your housing arrangements. However, Pompeu Fabra University provides references to organizations that supply housing on its website. Please review the Cost of Living section under Living in Barcelona on the Pompeu Fabra website for more information regarding potential costs of accommodations and meals.

CULTURAL CONNECTIONS

The self-reliant student who chooses the independence of this program will find many cultural connections in the very European and metropolitan city of Barcelona. Over 10% of UPF students are from other countries; all of the students in the HESP program are foreign students, primarily from the U.S. We encourage students to seek out interactions with local and other international students in their housing, their classes, and extracurricular activities.

Student Costs**:

- Housing & Meals

The cost of living varies in other cities and countries. Talk to returnees from the program to find out what personal expenses to expect, but remember that they vary by lifestyle. Check www.xe.com for current exchange rates.

*Instructions on how to apply are on the back of this flyer →
