

The University Writing Program and the Department of English are pleased to announce a public lecture:

Gerard Hauser

RHETORIC,
PEDAGOGY,
AND CIVIC RESPONSIBILITY

Gerard A. Hauser is on the faculty of the University of Colorado at Boulder, where he is Professor of Communication and a contributing member of the Comparative Literature faculty. His research focuses on rhetorical theory and criticism, dissident rhetoric, and the interaction between formal and vernacular rhetorics as they shape and are shaped by public spheres. Currently he is investigating the moral vernacular rhetorics of political prisoners. Hauser has written or edited four scholarly books, including Introduction to Rhetorical Theory and Vernacular Voices: The Rhetoric of Publics and Public Spheres. He is an NCA Distinguished Scholar, an RSA Fellow, and Editor of Philosophy and Rhetoric.

Join us at 4 p.m., on Wednesday, May 6, in the Renaissance Room, Mary Reed Building. Reception to follow.

For more information, call the University Writing Program: 303.871.7448