“And Crown Thy Good: Varian Fry in Marseilles”

A documentary work-in-progress by Pierre Sauvage
(Varian Fry Institute, 2013)

Pierre Sauvage captivated the audience at the 2004 Fred Marcus Memorial Holocaust Lecture with his award-winning documentary “Weapons of the Spirit,” about the residents of the French town of LeChambon who rescued him and his family, along with 5,000 other Jews. Sauvage, who is also the president and founder of the Chambon Foundation/Varian Fry Institute, is currently focusing on the underexplored American experience of the Holocaust. He will preview and discuss “And Crown Thy Good: Varian Fry in Marseille,” his fascinating, soon-to-be-released film about a courageous and little-known rescuer.

ABOUT FRED MARCUS (5/16/24-6/25/02)

Fred Marcus, for whom this annual Holocaust lecture series is named, was born in Berlin and spent the war years in Shanghai, China as a refugee from Nazi Germany. A nationally known Jewish educator, he was a member of the Speakers Bureau of the Holocaust Awareness Institute and gave frequent talks about the Holocaust to school classes, organizations, as well as church and synagogue groups. For more information about Fred and Jews in Shanghai, visit www.survivalinshanghai.com.

BRING YOUR GENTLY WORN SHOES TO THE LECTURE

We are again collecting gently worn shoes at the lecture as a reminder of the shoes left behind in concentration camps by victims of the Holocaust. This year, shoes will be donated to Soles4Souls, a national organization that provides shoes to needy individuals and supports micro-business efforts to relieve poverty in the U.S. and around the world. Please help with this worthwhile effort.
