Islamic and Jewish Musical Intersections Throughout History

lecture & workshop with Tami Machnai-Harari
Wednesday, October 10, 2018 • 2:00-3:50 p.m. • Sturm Hall 286

Islam and Judaism share a common origin in the Middle East and a 1,400 year relationship. In this workshop/gathering we will focus on the musical connections, influences and similarities between Islam and Judaism throughout their shared history. Through active participation, we will learn about and explore the typical scales, rhythms, and performance-styles of these musical traditions, as well as listen to old and new Arabic and Jewish music samples that testify to these principles.

Presented by DU's Center for Judaic Studies with support from the Marsico Visiting Scholars Program; Co-sponsored by DU's Center for Middle East Studies, Center for World Languages & Cultures, Department of History, Department of Languages & Literatures, and the Office of Teaching & Learning. Please RSVP to cjs@du.edu. Visit us online at www.du.edu/ahss/cjs or in Sturm Hall #157.
