DATA PROJECT

The Social Conflict in Africa Database (<http://scaddata.org>) is a resource for conducting research and analysis on various forms of social and political unrest in Africa. It includes over 7,900 social conflict events across Africa from 1990 to 2011, including riots, strikes, protests, coups, and communal violence. The data are fully geo-referenced and suitable for use with GIS applications and conducting geospatial analysis. Downloaded over 1,000 times by researchers in 87 countries since March 2011. Co-created with Idean Salehyan.
