COMMUNICATION STUDIES 2013–2014

Why study communication at the University of Denver?

• The Department of Communication Studies has been a pioneer in speech and communication studies since 1912, offering MA and PhD programs, as well as a dual degree with the Graduate School of Social Work.

• Our program takes full advantage of being situated in the state’s capital and business center, offering students excellent opportunities to study culture and communication, interpersonal and family communication, and public discourse and communication ethics.

The graduate program in Communication Studies seeks to identify the ways in which we can better understand who we are as members of cultures, groups and families; examine and critique ideologies and structures that constrain our contact with each other; identify ways to deliberate and reach just decisions in public, organizational and personal contexts; and create the means for dialogue and collaboration in instances of conflict and struggle. This mission is realized through three distinct but overlapping areas of emphasis in which students can specialize: culture and communication, interpersonal and family communication, and rhetoric and communication ethics.
Students must select a primary Area of Emphasis in which to study. In certain cases, a student may combine two areas with the assistance of a faculty advisor. The student’s chosen area must be communicated to a faculty member in that area.

CULTURE & COMMUNICATION

Emphasis Description
The area of Culture and Communication investigates the communicative constitution and intersection of difference in its various codifications as culture, race, class, religion, ethnicity, nationality, gender and sexual orientation. Its vision is to promote an ethic of inclusivity, racial and social justice, reciprocity, and mutual transformation in the encounter of difference. Courses reflect this emphasis, focusing on the social and performative construction of identity, the politics of representation, performances of affect, identity, and community and vernacular and embodied rhetorics, all informed by critical, feminist and queer perspectives on cultural communication.

Vision
This area investigates the communicative constitution and negotiation of difference in its various codifications as culture, race, religion, ethnicity, nationality, gender and sexual orientation. Its vision of the goal of intercultural communication is to promote an ethic of inclusivity, racial and social justice, reciprocity, and mutual transformation in the encounter of difference. As such, it endeavors to equip students with perspectives, knowledge, and skills needed to function in an ethical manner within a global cultural context. Besides introducing students to the history of theorizing and practice in the field, the program seeks to update disciplinary competence to include more fluid and dynamic conceptions of cultural negotiation of difference within the context of trans-border crossings, intensified global interactions, and the displacement and movements of populations.

INTERPERSONAL & FAMILY COMMUNICATION

Program Description
The area of interpersonal communication explores how human communication works in our everyday lives, specifically, how people interact, and the impact their actions have on relationships between members of dyads, families, groups, social networks, and communities. A basic premise of work in this area is that human interaction is fundamental to the construction, development, and maintenance of personal and social relationships, and to the organization of social life as we know it today. The curriculum in this area draws from and is grounded in several significant traditions in social science and communication research, namely social-psychological, dialectical, and interpretive approaches. Courses focus on current trends and significant contributions to research in interpersonal communication, family communication, and research on close relationships.

Vision
The objective of study in this area is to facilitate an increased understanding of the communication processes and practices that occur within various contexts of interpersonal and social relationships, such as close, intimate relationships, including friendships, marriages, and family relationships. Our primary value commitment is to high-quality relationships. That is, our research and teaching is directed toward discovering and disseminating information about the ways that relationships can be mutually satisfying and constructive—or dissatisfying and destructive. We emphasize the construction of relationships through communication and recognize that quality relationships can take many forms.
RHETORIC & COMMUNICATION ETHICS

Emphasis Description
The Rhetoric and Communication Ethics area of emphasis is dedicated to the investigation of public communication and is particularly concerned with questions of how ethics and justice are constituted throughout the spectrum of public communication activity. The study of rhetoric and communication ethics at DU is best defined through three intellectual commitments. First, we are committed to developing philosophical accounts of the nature of communicative activity. Second, we are committed to understanding how communicative action works to form and transform our public and civic identities. And third, we are committed to producing reflective criticism of communicative activity in all of its textual and performative modalities.

Vision
It is our mission to foster intellectual relationships between faculty and students that will result in research programs capable of describing the normative presuppositions of communication activity, using that knowledge to expose and critique illegitimate and unjust communication behavior and constructing normative models of ethical communicative practice. It is our mission to cultivate teachers dedicated to addressing important public issues in a reasoned, passionate and ethical manner. It is our mission to model a deep commitment to using knowledge of rhetoric and communication ethics to further the public good.
The MA in Communication Studies

Requirements:
45 graduate-level quarter hours with thesis;
52 graduate-level quarter hours with comprehensive exam

Non-Course Requirements:
Comprehensive exams/thesis
Thesis defense or an eight-hour written comprehensive examination is required of all MA students.
Comprehensive examinations may be taken throughout the year, with the exception of summer quarter. Exams taken during breaks will be reviewed the next quarter following completion of the examination. Areas of testing are determined by an adviser within guidelines established by the communication studies faculty.

Course Requirements:
Research Foundations — minimum of 10 credit hours from the following:
- COMN 4900: Qualitative Methods I
- COMN 4901: Qualitative Methods II
- COMN 4930: Qualitative Methods I
- COMN 4931: Qualitative Methods II

Emphasis Area — minimum of 15 credit hours from one of the following lists:

Culture and Communication:
- COMN 4220: Critical Intercultural Communication (required)
- COMN 4221: Critical Methods for Studying Culture (required)
- COMN 4222: Writing Culture (suggested for thesis requirement)
- COMN 4221: Culture, Power and Representation
- COMN 4231: Discourse and Race
- COMN 4700: Topics: Intercultural Performance
- COMN 4701: Voices of Women of Color
- COMN 4701: Cultural Memory
- COMN 4701: Critical Pedagogy and Culture
- COMN 4702: Critical Sexuality Studies
- COMN 4702: Topics: Performance Ethnography
- COMN 4702: Topics Culture and Affect
- COMN 4702: Topics: Performative Pedagogy

Interpersonal and Family Communication:
- COMN 3240: Group Methods and Facilitation
- COMN 4020: COMN Studies: Relational Communication
- COMN 4110: Theories of Interpersonal Communication
- COMN 4210: Seminar: Interpersonal Communication
- COMN 4210: Seminar: Interpersonal Communication (Privacy and Disclosure in Interpersonal Communication)
- COMN 4250: Seminar in Family Communication
- COMN 4251: Advanced Seminar in Family Communication
- COMN 4280: Theories of Group Communication
- COMN 4300: Seminar in Persuasion
- COMN 4700: Topics: Narrative Communication
- COMN 4700: Topics: Identity and Relationships
- COMN 4701: Topics: Seminar in Gender and Communication
- COMN 4703: Topics: Communication and Mediated Relationships
- COMN 4710: Seminar: Nonverbal Communication

Rhetoric and Communication Ethics:
- COMN 3130: Organizational Culture
- COMN 3315: Seminar in Public Deliberation
- COMN 3400/COMN 4420: Modern Rhetorical Theory
- COMN 3410: Classical Rhetoric
- COMN 3435/COMN 4435: Rhetoric and the Public Life
- COMN 3470: Theories of Free Speech
- COMN 3780: Discourse, Power, and Ideology
- COMN 3850/COMN 4850: Communication Ethics (multiple seminars)
- COMN 4310: Communication and Collaboration
- COMN 4890: Philosophical Presuppositions of Communication

Minimum of two cognate courses outside of the area of emphasis and/or outside of the COMN prefix (10–15 credits)
The PhD in Communication Studies

Non-Course Requirements: Tool Requirement
The tool is a methodological rather than a content requirement. This requirement should be met through course work in a methodology that results in advanced knowledge about a method that is related to the dissertation. In addition to recognizing tool requirement options in the traditional sense, (i.e., statistics) the student, in consultation with the dissertation adviser, may petition the faculty for an option deemed appropriate to the research/ investigative requirements of the dissertation. The tool consists of 8–10 credits of course work taken during the PhD program at the University of Denver; transfer hours from the student’s prior MA program cannot be counted toward the tool.

Periodic Review
After completion of 30 quarter credits, the PhD student may be advanced to preliminary candidacy. Basis for advancement is the periodic faculty review of the progress of each student.

Comprehensive Examination
At the end of required graduate course work and preliminary to advancement to final candidacy, the PhD student is required to pass a comprehensive examination. The examination is designed to test the student’s competencies as a scholar. The examination assesses both depth and breadth of knowledge within the discipline by focusing upon both the student’s curriculum emphasis and supporting work in other fields of study. The comprehensive examination offers the doctoral student an opportunity to demonstrate that he/she has become an independent, original and mature thinker in the discipline, as a consequence of the research and study engaged in during formal graduate course work.

Examination Procedures
Exam preparation and administration will be under the supervision of an examination committee chosen by the student in conjunction with his/her adviser. The committee will consist of a minimum of three tenure-track faculty members in the department of communication studies. The examining committee chair will, in consultation with the student, convene the committee to prepare the examination and will offer the student guidance in preparation for meeting. (See the department for a more detailed description of comprehensive examination policies and procedures.)

Dissertation
The PhD student is expected to submit a formal dissertation proposal, write a dissertation and defend the dissertation in an oral examination. No oral examinations can be taken in the summer quarters.

Course Requirements:
135 graduate-level quarter hours
• Four courses from the research foundations sequence (20 credits)
  COMN 4900: Quantitative Methods I
  COMN 4901: Quantitative Methods II
  COMN 4930: Qualitative Methods I
  COMN 4931: Qualitative Methods II
• Emphasis Area — minimum of 30 credit hours from one of the following lists:
  Culture and Communication:
  COMN 4220: Critical Intercultural Communication (required)
  COMN 4221: Critical Methods for Studying Culture (required)
  COMN 4222: Writing Culture (required)
  COMN 4221: Culture, Power and Representation
  COMN 4231: Discourse and Race
  COMN 4700: Topics: Intercultural Performance
  COMN 4701: Topics: Voices of Women of Color
  COMN 4701: Cultural Memory
  COMN 4701: Topics: Critical Pedagogy and Culture
  COMN 4701: Topics: Performative Writing
  COMN 4702: Critical Sexuality Studies
  COMN 4702: Topics: Performance Ethnography
  COMN 4702: Topics: Culture and Affect
  COMN 4702: Topics: Performative Pedagogy
  Interpersonal and Family Communication:
  COMN 3240: Group Methods and Facilitation
  COMN 4020: COMN Studies: Relational Communication
  COMN 4110: Theories of Interpersonal Communication
  COMN 4210: Seminar: Interpersonal Communication
DEGREE REQUIREMENTS (CONTINUED)

COMN 4210: Seminar: Interpersonal Communication (Privacy and Disclosure in Interpersonal Communication)
COMN 4250: Seminar in Family Communication
COMN 4251: Advanced Seminar in Family Communication
COMN 4280: Theories of Group Communication
COMN 4300: Seminar in Persuasion
COMN 4700: Topics: Narrative Communication
COMN 4701: Topics: Seminar in Gender and Communication
COMN 4703: Topics: Communication and Mediated Relationships
COMN 4710: Seminar: Nonverbal Communication

Rhetorical and Communication Ethics:
COMN 3130: Organizational Culture
COMN 3315: Seminar in Public Deliberation
COMN 3400/COMN 4420: Modern Rhetorical Theory
COMN 3410: Classical Rhetoric
COMN 3435/COMN 4435: Rhetoric and the Public Life
COMN 3470: Theories of Free Speech
COMN 3780: Discourse, Power and Ideology
COMN 3850/COMN 4850: Communication Ethics (multiple seminars)
COMN 4310: Communication and Collaboration
COMN 4890: Philosophical Presuppositions of Communication

• Three cognate courses outside of the area of emphasis (15 credits)
• Tools (Advanced Methods) — 8–10 quarter hours. (There are no predetermined courses prescribed for this requirement. Students decide on applicable courses with their respective advisers)
• Maximum of 15 quarter hours of COMN 5995 (dissertation hours)
• Maximum of 30 quarter hours may be taken outside of COMN

Dual Degree Programs
The Department of Communication Studies offers a dual degree with the Graduate School of Social Work.

Master of Arts in Communication/Master of Social Work (MSW)
Under the agreement with the Graduate School of Social Work, the student can earn the dual degree of Master of Arts in Communication Studies and Master of Social Work. The dual degree requires an admission application and acceptance by each of the departments. Thus, the dual degree is earned concurrently within established guidelines. Specific details and requirements are consistent with the most current agreement date and can be provided upon request.
Bernadette Calafell
Associate professor
PhD, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Christina Foust
Associate professor
PhD, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Joshua Hanan
Assistant professor
PhD, University of Texas at Austin

Richie Neil Hao
Assistant professor
PhD, Southern Illinois University

Darrin Hicks
Associate professor
PhD, Southern Illinois University

Mary Claire Morr Serewicz
Associate professor
PhD, Arizona State University

Elizabeth Suter
Associate professor
PhD, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Erin Willer
Assistant professor
PhD, University of Nebraska

Kate Willink
Associate professor
PhD, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Roy V. Wood
Professor
PhD, University of Denver
COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

COMN 3130 Organizational Communication (4 qtr. hrs.)
This is an applied course, service learning course, based on a consulting model. While the course will extend and enrich the topical and theoretical knowledge developed in COMN 1550 and COMN 2130, the primary purpose of this course will be to help students explore how they can put such knowledge into practice by collectively working with a local non-profit organization to first diagnose and then propose (and, in some cases implement) solutions to an organizational communication problem faced by that organization.

COMN 3230 Principles of Leadership (4 qtr. hrs.)
Roles, functions, behaviors that influence and direct; emphasis on interpersonal effectiveness; theories and methods.

COMN 3245 Building Group/Team Effectiveness (4 qtr. hrs.)
The objectives of this course are to help students acquire a deeper understanding of groups and teams, how they function, and what contributes to their success or failure. It also aims to help students develop the skills and capacities that will allow them to contribute in concrete and significant ways to successful outcomes and satisfying experiences for themselves and others in groups and teams.

COMN 3270 Health Communication (4 qtr. hrs.)
This course examines the role of health communication in our everyday lives. We will focus on communication strategies that inform and influence individuals, families, and communities in decisions that enhance health. We will also explore the dynamics and impact of health communication between individuals and the health care system such as doctor-patient communication, dissemination of health related information, and the role of mediated communication in examining health communication.

COMN 3280 Family Communication (4 qtr. hrs.)
The purpose of this course is to enhance understanding about communication patterns within families. In this course, we will examine theory/research on the role of communication in creating and maintaining healthy marriages and families. Specifically, we will study communication and the family life cycle, different family forms, family race/ethnicity, power in families, conflict in families, communication and stress in families, and communication in the aging family. The course format includes lectures, discussions, analysis of case studies, and in class applications.

COMN 3285 Advanced Relational Communication (4 qtr. hrs.)
Advanced Relational Communication is intended to increase understanding of relationships from diverse perspectives. The three main perspectives we will investigate show how relationships affect and are affected by their context, the individuals involved, and the relational system. The goals of this course are for students to increase their skill in (1) explaining how knowledge about context, individuals, and relational systems increases understanding of communication processes in a variety of relationships; (2) evaluating critically the information about relationships that we encounter in our everyday lives; (3) asking and investigating questions about real-life relationships.

COMN 3290 Communication and Aging (4 qtr. hrs.)
In this course, we will focus on the communication processes associated with aging. We will explore the implications of aging and how aging affects the process and outcomes social and relational interactions. We will examine communication and aging through interactional processes (intrapersonal, interpersonal and relational) and through context (organization, family, health, and culture). Emphasis will be placed on the theoretical and applied research in communication and aging.

COMN 3300 Principles of Persuasion (4 qtr. hrs.)
This course involves a social scientific approach to persuasion and social influence. Some of the topics included in this approach are the relationship between attitude and behavior; characteristics of the source, message, and receiver of a persuasive appeal; and models and theories that explain the effects of persuasive communication. By the end of the course, students should be able to think more critically about the persuasive messages they encounter in everyday life, to apply theoretical models of persuasion, and to construct persuasive messages.
COMN 3315 Public Deliberation (4 qtr. hrs.)
During the last two decades public deliberation has emerged as the centerpiece of theoretical and practical accounts of liberal democracy. This course begins by setting out the nature and functions of public deliberation. We will then track how deliberative democrats respect the traditional accounts of inclusion, equality and reason in an attempt to meet the demands of the deep cultural diversity that marks social life in advanced industrial societies. Specifically we will ask if public deliberation as portrayed in these accounts is sufficient to meet these demands or do we need to expand our understanding of political argument to include a diversity of rhetorical practices? And, once we do expand our account of deliberation how does this transform the traditional problematics of both democratic and rhetorical theory?

COMN 3425 Rhetoric and Governance (4 qtr. hrs.)
An introduction to the works of Michel Foucault and his influence on contemporary rhetorical theory. Permission of instructor is required.

COMN 3435 Rhetoric and Public Life (4 qtr. hrs.)
An introduction to the conceptual and political history of the public sphere. The course pays particular attention to how the normative assumptions of public communication are affected by the demands of cultural pluralism. Permission from instructor is required.

COMN 3470 Seminar in Free Speech (4 qtr. hrs.)
This course will survey some of the major conceptual innovations in the justifications of freedom of speech. We will begin with an exploration of the traditional defenses of free speech and then move to a reexamination of those defenses in light of modern communication theory and the challenges of pluralism. In particular we will ask if the justifications of free speech need to be rethought given our understanding of speech as a social force that constitutes identities and values rather than merely expressing private opinions. Moreover, given our understanding of the social force of speech, should we regulate speech that is racist, sexist and seems to erode the foundations of a public culture based on mutual respect and public deliberation over social goods? Can we devise a robust defense of free speech based on its social force that both protects those that may be harmed by antidemocratic discourses and still provides the resources for democratic dissent?

COMN 3500 Advanced Public Speaking (4 qtr. hrs.)
Theory, preparation, delivery and evaluation of public speeches.

COMN 3680 Gender and Communication (4 qtr. hrs.)
This course focuses on the interactive relationships between gender and communication in contemporary U.S. society. This implies three priorities for the class. First, the course explores the multiple ways communication creates and perpetuates gender roles in families, media, and society in general. Second, the course considers how we enact socially created gender differences in public and private settings and how this affects success, satisfaction, and self-esteem. Third, the course connects theory and research to our personal lives. Throughout the quarter, the course considers not only what IS in terms of gender roles, but also what might be and how we, as change agents, may act to improve our individual and collective lives.

COMN 3700 Topics in Communication (1 to 4 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3701 Topics in Communication (1 to 4 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3702 Topics in Communication (1 to 4 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3703 Topics in Communication (1 to 4 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3704 Topics in Communication (1 to 4 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3705 Topics in Communication (1 to 4 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 3770 Mediated Communication and Relationships (4 qtr. hrs.)
This course examines how people develop, define, maintain, and manage interpersonal relationships through their use of mediated communication. We will examine communication in relationships that occur through the internet, text-messaging, cell phones, chat rooms, gaming, and virtual communities. This is a seminar type course where students guide and are guided through their own study of mediated relationships.

COMN 3800 Philosophies of Dialogue (4 qtr. hrs.)
This course explores the philosophies of dialogue of Martin Buber, Mikhail Bakhtin and others in the context of contemporary communication scholarship on ethics, culture, and relationship. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

COMN 3850 Communication Ethics (4 qtr. hrs.)
This class is not just about how to be ethical communicators but it is also about how to discover ethics—the good life and care for others, answerability and responsibility—deep within the structures of human communication itself. The course is committed to a mixture of theory and practice but practice is at the heart of the matter. Half of our sessions will be devoted to dialogue or conversation about ethics in life. There we will try to work as close as we can with ethics in our own lived experience. In the other half, we will explore theory: the ethical/philosophical/communicative ground of ethics.

COMN 3991 Independent Study (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3992 Directed Study (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 3995 Independent Research (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)
Topics and quarter hours vary. Prerequisite: instructor’s permission.

COMN 4010 Introduction to Graduate Studies (5 qtr. hrs.)
History of the discipline; noteworthy scholars and publications, current issues in the discipline.

COMN 4020 Communication Studies: Relational (5 qtr. hrs.)
Recent social science literature in interpersonal communication; emphasis on pragmatics, meta-level perspectives, relational concerns affecting intimacies, friendships, families.

COMN 4030 Communication Studies: Organizational (3 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
Ways in which communicative actions create, maintain, transform terms that define and regulate our practical and passionate attachments to each other; specifically how identity, knowledge, value, social organizations are constructed in and through communicative practices.

COMN 4100 Seminar: Speech Communication Theory (5 qtr. hrs.)
Theoretical foundations of communication and language behavior; syntactics, semantics, pragmatics.

COMN 4110 Theories in Interpersonal Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Selected themes in interpersonal communication, based primarily on theoretical sources, including interaction, relationships, goal achievement, hierarchies, interpersonal change.

COMN 4120 Comparative Theories in Human Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Selected efforts to construct theories of human communication; lectures, discussions, student presentations of analysis of readings.

COMN 4130 Seminar in Communication in Human Organizations (5 qtr. hrs.)
Current problems and issues in organizational communication.

COMN 4140 Graduate Colloquium (5 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 4150 Culture, Ethnicity and Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
A cross-cultural approach to investigate communication codes, norms, value dimensions, power, privilege, and relationship issues within national, ethnic, and gender groups.
COMN 4200 Physical Basis of Spoken Language (5 qtr. hrs.)
The purpose of this course is to provide the student with a comprehensive understanding of the past, current, and evolving legal, policy, and regulatory issues effecting telecommunications, telecommunications-related industries, and the Internet. Laws and policies effecting multichannel television, wireline and wireless telephone companies, and the Internet will be examined in depth. Focus is placed on the role public policy plays in light of a rapidly changing information environment, critical evaluation and understanding of the rationale behind policy and regulatory activity, and the exploration of the various complex problems arising from the evolving information environment and its products.

COMN 4210 Seminar: Interpersonal Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Selected theories applicable to interpersonal communication and their implications.

COMN 4220 Critical Intercultural Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
This seminar explores the key figures and foundational essays in the development of Critical Intercultural Communication. This seminar offers a critical perspective on current theory and research in intercultural communication. We emphasize questions and practices of “diversity” (especially involving race, class, gender, and sexuality) as they manifest in local and global contexts in the United States. The principle objective is to develop a politically informed and self-reflexive praxis in the service of reframing the study of intercultural communication.

COMN 4221 Culture, Power and Representation (5 qtr. hrs.)
Central to the production of cultural knowledge about the ‘other’ is the labor of power implicated in all practices of discursive representation. In this course, we will examine the various theories of representation, the racial and gendered production of difference, the relation between discourse and subjectivity, and more generally, the poetics and politics of representation. These topics will be explored within a rich variety of contexts and institutional sites, e.g., in colonial and anthropological discourse, in popular media narratives and consumer culture, in the global deployment of Western theoretical/knowledge productions, among others.

COMN 4222 Theories of Identity and Subjectivity (5 qtr. hrs.)
The seminar explores the communicative constitution of cultural, political, and institutional identities. Discussion will range from the historical development of the theoretical discourse on identity and subjectivity to more contemporary theories covering the emergence and transformation of identities in public discursive spaces. Particular attention will be given to theoretical frameworks and methods of inquiry animating research having to do with what is known as the “new cultural politics of difference.” The course ends with a look at the contexts and arenas in which “identity” and “subjectivity” have emerged as critical sites of contestation in the 21st century.

COMN 4223 Culture and Communication: Contexts and Issues (5 qtr. hrs.)
This is a capstone course in the foundations sequence for the Culture and Communication Area of Concentration in Human Communication Studies. This course will integrate content from the other three area foundations courses and specifically address implications for the study and practice of intercultural communication in such contexts of study as globalization, transnationalism, diaspora, colonization, immigration, adaptation, localization, corporate, institutional, and situated discourse. In addition current theoretical, research, and application issues and problematics such as multivocality, voice and representation, intersections and contradictions of contradictory identifications, representations, micro and macro forces, and paradigmatic separation and integration will be discussed. Prerequisites: COMN 4220, COMN 4221 and COMN 4222.

COMN 4230 Intercultural Training (5 qtr. hrs.)
Research and theoretical approaches that examine international/intercultural training and instructional practices about topics such as adaptation, adjustment, competence, conflict and cultural diversity.
COMN 4231 Discourse and Race (5 qtr. hrs.)
This course looks at race as a discursive formation using the literature in Critical Race Theory that has emerged over the past decade. In analyzing this body of work covering a wide range of themes and diverse theoretical perspectives, we hope to uncover the historic, material, as well as symbolic determinations of the discourse on race that have conspired to sustain a highly racialized system in place.

COMN 4240 Seminar: Group Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Small group literature; interpersonal and group communication.

COMN 4250 Seminar: Family Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
This course is designed to investigate and explore the communication processes associated with families. Areas of exploration include definitions of family communication and interactional patterns, the impact of life stage on family communication processes, marriage and divorce, parent-child communication, sibling interactions, the child-free family, and the later-life family.

COMN 4251 Advanced Seminar in Family Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
This advanced seminar is designed to build on the first seminar in family communication. The course will examine how historic research in the study of families has influenced the field of family communication. Emphasis will be placed on how understanding these classics can influence theory and research in the human communication area of family communication.

COMN 4280 Theories-Group Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Examination, from different theoretical perspectives, of group communication as an area of study; research and application in speech communication discipline.

COMN 4300 Seminar in Persuasion (5 qtr. hrs.)
Theory, research, special problems in persuasion and attitude change.

COMN 4310 Communication and Collaboration (5 qtr. hrs.)
A survey of contemporary theories and applications.

COMN 4315 Public Deliberation (5 qtr. hrs.)
An introduction to the theories and problematics of public deliberation. The course pays particular attention to the demands of inclusion, equality, and public reason as requirements of public deliberation.

COMN 4400 Seminar: Rhetoric Conversation Analysis (5 qtr. hrs.)
Contemporary contributions to development of rhetorical theory ranging from perspectives on rhetoric offered by various rhetorical theorists to methods of rhetorical criticism.

COMN 4420 Rhetorical Theory (5 qtr. hrs.)
Contemporary rhetorical theories.

COMN 4425 Rhetoric and Governance (5 qtr. hrs.)
An introduction to the works of Michel Foucault and his influence on contemporary rhetorical theory.

COMN 4435 Rhetoric and Public Life (5 qtr. hrs.)
An introduction to the conceptual and political history of the public sphere. The course pays particular attention to how the normative assumptions of public communication are affected by the demands of cultural pluralism.

COMN 4510 Seminar: Speech Communication Theory (5 qtr. hrs.)
Integration of conceptual theory with behavioral practice in formal public speaking situations through lectures, discussions, performances.
COMN 4530 Critical Theories of Communication II: Nietzsche’s Influence on Contemporary Rhetoric (5 qtr. hrs.)
In conversation with Classical Rhetorical Theory and Critical Theories I, this course is designed to explore a major philosopher’s influence on rhetoric and communication studies. Friedrich Nietzsche offers and inspires a second trajectory of thinking that allies with, but ultimately diverges from, the Marxist critical project. Broadly, Nietzschean thought echoes the Marxist concern for structural oppression, alienation, and limited consciousness; but it attempts to undermine structural power as much as possible without the tools of structural power (namely, language, values/truth/knowledge, and the subject). We explore this line of critique much more closely, considering how it has materialized in communication scholarship. This course offers a point of departure for explorations of particular theorists.

COMN 4700 Topics in Communication (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4701 Topics in Communication (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4702 Topics in Communication (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4703 Topics in Communication (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4704 Topics in Communication (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4705 Topics in Communication (1 to 5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4710 Seminar: Nonverbal Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Theoretical and practical exploration of interpersonal role relationships; emphasis on time, space, kinetic, vocal, tactile cues; methodological concerns.
COMN 4760 Linguistic Aspects of Communication Theory (5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4800 Philosophies of Dialogue (5 qtr. hrs.)
This course explores the philosophies of dialogue of Martin Buber, Mikhail Bakhtin and others in the context of contemporary communication scholarship on ethics, culture, and relationship.

COMN 4850 Communication Ethics (5 qtr. hrs.)
This course explores the work of Todorov, Bakhtin, Levinas, and Hyde as foundational to communication ethics.

COMN 4890 Philosophy of Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
How speech communication is presupposed and/or demonstrated to be related to social reality, language, intersubjectivity by various methodologies used in conducting communication research; special emphasis on exploring presuppositions of recent methodological developments in contrast to more traditional approaches.

COMN 4900 Quantitative Methods I (5 qtr. hrs.)
Lectures, readings, written assignments that facilitate growth and development of the research scholar.

COMN 4901 Quantitative Methods II (5 qtr. hrs.)
This course is a continuation of the HCOM 4900 which explored the process of human inquiry, social science paradigms, the development of sound research questions, and strategies and techniques surrounding sampling, measurement and design. This course will expand on the exploration of research design and statistical methods that can be utilized in answering research questions and hypotheses. In addition, we will be collecting data that will be used to help us understand and analyze various statistical strategies.

COMN 4910 Theory Building in Communication (5 qtr. hrs.)
Steps involved in constructing theory; application of theory building process to communication phenomena.

COMN 4915 Discourse Analysis (5 qtr. hrs.)
An introduction to common theoretical assumptions and methods shared by scholars who study discourse as social interaction, with emphasis on analyzing key features of discourse that are central to their work.

COMN 4920 Communication Research Practicum (5 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4930 Speech and Communication Research - Qualitative Methods (5 qtr. hrs.)
Grounded theory, phenomenology and other non-numerical approaches to research in human interaction.

COMN 4931 Qualitative Methods II (5 qtr. hrs.)
This course teaches students qualitative data management skills, introduces them to an array of qualitative methods for analyzing naturalistic data, and guides them through the application of these skills to qualitative research projects. Prerequisite: COMN 4930

COMN 4932 Critical Methods for Studying Culture (5 qtr. hrs.)
This seminar provides an overview of a variety of critical methodologies (inclusive of the theory of method) for the study of culture. Potential course foci include textual analysis, critical ethnography, personal narrative, oral history, performance writing, and autoethnography.

COMN 4933 Writing Culture (5 qtr. hrs.)
This seminar serves as a capstone course in the Culture and Communication seminar sequence. Students explore diverse genres used to write about culture. The course aims to help every student find a writing voice by reading excellent writing in diverse genres. By writing and rewriting all term, this course guides students through the process of writing an article centered around culture and communication, following the practices of the field.

COMN 4991 Independent Study (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4992 Directed Study (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 4995 Independent Research (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)

COMN 5921 Seminar: Communication Research I (5 qtr. hrs.)
Design, method, procedure strategies in research. Prerequisite: approved proposal.

COMN 5922 Seminar: Communication Research II (5 qtr. hrs.)
Design, method, procedure strategies in research. Prerequisite: approved proposal.

COMN 5923 Seminar: Communication Research III (5 qtr. hrs.)
Design, method, procedure strategies in research. Prerequisite: approved proposal.

COMN 5991 Independent Study (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 5992 Directed Study (1 to 10 qtr. hrs.)
COMN 5995 Independent Research (1 to 15 qtr. hrs.)

For More Information
A complete description of the program’s official offerings and requirements is available from the department at http://www.du.edu/comn

The University of Denver is an Equal Opportunity institution. We admit students of any race, color, national and ethnic origin to all the rights, privileges, programs and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the University. The University of Denver does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national and ethnic origin in administration of our educational policies, admission policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other university-administered programs. University policy likewise prohibits discrimination on the basis of age, religion, disability, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, marital status or veteran status. Inquiries concerning allegations of discrimination based on any of the above factors may be referred to the University of Denver, Office of Diversity and Equal Opportunity.