PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE:

Director, Partners in Learning
University of Denver, Denver, CO

2005-present

- Created over 50 opportunities per year for all DU students to engage with faculty outside the classroom with a $30,000 budget. Utilized creative learning techniques and reached a diverse spectrum of student interests and developmental needs.
 - Selected examples of educational opportunities created:
 - DU Dialogues – a current issue of student interest is paired with an interest model of dialogue for an evening of student/faculty discussion. Topics included – the race and class issues that arose after Hurricane Katrina, patriotism and the war in Iraq, immigration, the two party political system, the future look of education at DU, diversity at DU, and Stem Cell research. Dialogue models included – World Café, Fishbowl Dialogues, Storytelling Circles, Chalk Talk, and Human Sculpture.
 - Hot Topics – faculty led discussion on current issues over a meal in the residence hall dining halls.
 - Open Mic Nights – students, staff, and faculty share their poetry and prose in the campus pub. Each year culminated in a Poetry Slam competition with prizes. Local guest poets were also highlighted.
 - Let's Do Lunch – students invite faculty or faculty invite students to share a meal in the dining halls to continue classroom conversation or share academic interests – meals are paid by DU. Climate Change Teach-In – a day of interdisciplinary, faculty-led, short presentations/discussions for the DU community to learn about climate change.
 - Mini Courses – faculty led a two hour workshop of their popular course.
 - Consuming Misogyny Symposium – a day long event designed to educate the DU community about the many ways that society consumes the mistreatment of women. Held in conjunction with the Sexual Assault Awareness Week events.
 - A Mile in Their Shoes – a week of educational events to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Montgomery Bus Boycotts.
- Programmed with a commitment to diversity and intergroup dialogue.

- Supervised 2-3 student employees each year and a higher education graduate intern for one year with mentorship style relationships.
- Developed learning outcomes for events to assess student learning.
- Managed all aspects of program development, budget, annual reporting, and administration of office.
- Reached out to new and seasoned faculty to enlist and motivate their involvement in the program – nearly 200 different faculty in three years.
- Coordinated Emerging Leader Program for four cohorts of 15 students in 2005-06
- Collaborated with approximately 65 different campus and community groups over three years.
