

2016 spring COMPOSIUM

Call for Participation

The University Writing Program invites students to participate in our Spring COMPosium, a showcase of student writing and research, on Wednesday May 18th from 3:30–5:00PM in the Anderson Academic Commons Special Events Space (AAC 290). We encourage students to share individual or group projects from any WRIT course taken in the 2015–2016 academic year. The format for the event is a Poster Session, though students can display their work in any mode or genre.

Possible examples of appropriate projects include:

Posters, Videos, Powerpoint or Prezi presentations, Podcasts, Written Work, Multimedia Projects, etc.

At this year's Spring COMPosium, we hope to highlight the writing and research process at all stages. We encourage students to present both polished projects and works in progress.

E-mail your individual, group, or class proposals to Lauren.Picard@du.edu by Wednesday May 11th at 6PM. Include the proposal as the text of your e-mail. Your proposal should indicate the following:

- If this is an individual, group, or class project (& all names of participating presenters)
- The topic of your project (in 2–3 sentences)
- The current state of your project (is this a finished product or a work in progress?)
- The course for which you completed the project
- The manner in which you will present the project (e.g., a poster, video, etc.)
- Any additional requests (e.g., A/V needs), questions, or concerns
