

Writing in the Public

Tuesday February 11
6PM–7PM

The University Writing Program is happy to sponsor its first “Writing in the Public” event. This roundtable conversation will invite our first-year Writing Program students to expand their notions of writing past the “ivory tower” as three diverse speakers from the Denver community discuss their writing processes as public intellectuals.

Special Events Space (AAC 290)

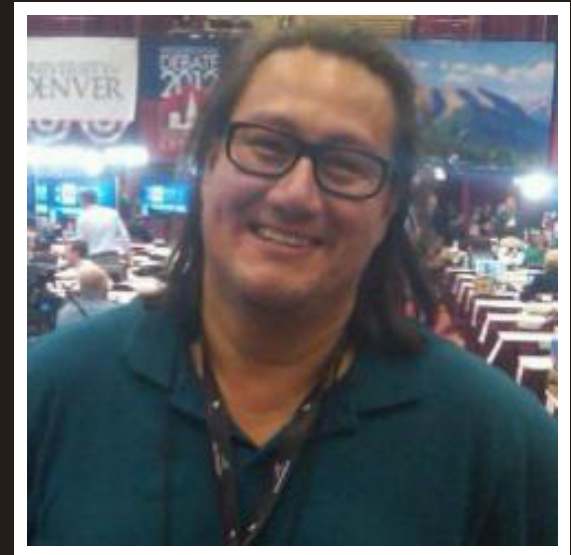

Dylan Scholinski

Visual artist, Memoirist, and author of
The Last Time I Wore a Dress

Rachel Kleinfeld

President of the Truman National Security Project and Senior Associate at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

Peter Banda

Journalist for the Associated Press

Please encourage your winter WRIT students to attend. Refreshments will be served.

UNIVERSITY of
DENVER

UNIVERSITY WRITING PROGRAM